

Hacking Ruby in San Francisco

Yokudo (yokudo.com) is a new startup in San Francisco. We want to make it possible for music artists to make money in the era of digital and free. Yokudo provides an innovative new way for fans and artists to connect. Fans have more fun and artists capture a powerful fan movement, free promotion, and a new sustainable revenue stream.

Yokudo was co-founded by Sören Stamer who also co-founded CoreMedia.

Join us at Yokudo and revolutionize the music industry.

We are looking for Ruby hacking students who would like to come to San Francisco to help build a game-changing startup for 6 to 12 months.
Yokudo will sponsor your business visa.

You have 2+ years of experience with Ruby on Rails.
You love XP and are passionate about writing agile, elegant, DRY code.
You thrive in a fast-paced startup environment.

It would be great if you also have experience with Facebook APIs and Amazon Web Services.

Please send your resume to jobs@yokudo.com, along with samples of sites you've worked on.
